CHAMBERLAIN QUILTS AS LORD PRESIDENT OF BRITISH COUNCIL

Ailing in Health, Finally Bows
To Demands Made By The Populace

A MAJOR SHAKE-UP

Many Pleased That "Taint of Munich Has Been Expurgated"

By Charles A. Smith
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(INS)—Ailing in health, Neville Chamberlain finally bowed today to demands that he quit the British Government, and resigned as Lord President of the Council.

Confined to bed for the past several days, Chamberlain, peace-time apostle of appeasement who preceded Winston Churchill as Prime Minister, retired from the Government amid a major Government shake-up which included a further augmentation of the inner war cabinet.

In a letter to Churchill, the out-going Lord President of the Council expressed full confidence that the Prime Minister would lead Britain to victory.

The first official announcement that Chamberlain was "out"—climaxing months of agitation urging him to leave—produced a mixed reaction.

There were many expressions of regret, coupled with satisfaction that the "taint of Munich has been expurgated" and that Chamberlain's former appeasement policies no longer can be credited to a member of the Government.

Heretofore, however, Churchill has steadfastly defended Chamberlain against his critics.

Chamberlain's departure from official life was accompanied by a widespread shift in the Churchill Cabinet and a move which brought two of its most powerful members, Lord Minister Ernest Bevin and Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood into the inner war cabinet.

Knickerbocker Warns of The War's Dangers

New York, Oct. 3.—Germany will not succeed in invading England, in the opinion of H. R. Knickerbocker, famous war correspondent in International News Service.

Back in New York today from a strenuous European assignment, Knickerbocker sounded a grim warning that the United States—for its own protection—must "wake up to the world crisis."

Knickerbocker expressed the utmost faith in Britain's ability to hold the German war machine and its allies at bay, and he seemed confident Germany will not win the war.

"The city of London is being destroyed now at a rate which, if continued throughout the winter, will leave London unrecognizable. Famous buildings are getting it with the rest," declared the correspondent.

"If the battering continues at its present rate, London will have to move out in two years' time. But that doesn't mean that Germany will win the war."

"We can't arm fast enough," he asserted. "Our conscription is fine—but we should double the number."

British Bombers Attack Germany

London, Oct. 3.—Striking despite unfavorable weather, strong forces of British bombers attacked military targets in Germany and Nazi-held territory, including communications, oil depots and invasion bases, the British Air Ministry announced today.

"Thick clouds and poor visibility hampered RAF bombing operations last night but nevertheless strong forces continued attacks on military objectives in Germany and enemy-occupied territory," the announcement said.

"Points attacked included oil plants in Stettin, Hamburg and Bottrop. The Krupp works at Essen, goods yards at Cologne, the railway junction at Hamm, several enemy airdromes and docks at Hamburg and Wilhelmshaven and ports and shipping at Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Antwerp, Flushing and Ostend and Calais."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Hague Alliance

Washington, Oct. 2.

THE hookup between the odoriferous and evil Hague machine in New Jersey and the Roosevelt Administration in Washington is open, complete and unashamed. It is a sinister relationship, in which each side profits from the other.

WITHOUT Mr. Hague, Mr. Roosevelt's third-term candidacy would look very sick indeed in New Jersey. And without his political link with the Roosevelt Administration, Mr. Hague would be in serious trouble as a result of the charges of fraud against his organization.

Their son, Harry, Jr., is employed by the American Express Company at the World's Fair, where he expects to stay until after October 27th.

Warning that heavily loaded trucks are jeopardizing the safety of bridges throughout this section and the state in general has been issued by the Keystone Automobile Club.

Many of the bridges, it is pointed out, are of ancient vintage erected in the horse-and-buggy days and intended to support weights much less than those carried by modern vehicles. They are "posted" for maximum loads above which vehicles are forbidden to make use of the spans, but the club declares there is little or no enforcement of this phase of motor vehicle regulations.

Investigations conducted by the club disclose that "posted" weights are almost universally ignored, largely because the limitations affect bridges on well-traveled routes. In some instances heavy truck traffic between towns would be eliminated entirely if the law were strictly enforced.

The Woodside Needlework Guild has reported on activities for the past year. Total number of garments contributed were 604; money contributions, $26.65, and garments were distributed to the local Red Cross nursing service, Yardley Community Mothers' Assistance Fund, Kensington Neighborhood House, private families and the Friends' service committee.

Announce Sale of Fifty-Six-Acre Farm

Previews Incorporated, the National Real Estate Clearing House, reports the recent sale of one of its Pennsylvania listings, one at Naces Corner, the other at Pickering Valley.

The fifty-six acre farm owned by Miller Simon, a commercial photographer, situated at Naces Corner near Chalfont, in the delightfully picturesque "old-farm" section of Bucks County, has been purchased by Alfred M. Watson of Philadelphia. The broker in the transaction was Wynne James, Jr., of Doylestown.

The property has been renovated by Mr. and Mrs. Simon in such a manner that none of the charm of its antiquity has been cast aside, although possessing every facility afforded by modern construction. On the farm's fifty-six secluded acres stands an old stone and frame Pennsylvania Dutch farmhouse of nine rooms and three baths. Among the house's rare antique features are original random-width floors, local stone fireplaces with old pine mantels, natural finished paneling, and an unusual twist staircase. In addition to the main residence there are a frame and stone building suitably located for a guest house or chauffeur's quarters, a large frame barn and a three-car detached garage. All the buildings are situated on the crest of a hill with beautiful panoramic views show the church spires of Doylestown in the distance, six miles away.

You Figure It Out!

(By "The Stroller")
A motor car, the manufacturing date of which was a few years back, halted on Radcliffe street, on Tuesday afternoon.
From it stepped a man with a blanket, which he carefully placed over the radiator, then on top of the blanket, lest it blow away, securely set a rock.
We thought at first, even though the temperature was far above freezing, that the driver was fearful of finding ice in his radiator when he returned.
But then from the car stepped a woman clad in a Summer dress, and wearing no coat.
We're still perplexed!

"Pennsylvania Days" Drive Begins Today

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Sponsored by 32 national chain store systems and some 48 business, trade and civic organizations, a nine-day "Pennsylvania Days" campaign to stimulate the sale and distribution of Keystone State products began today.

The opening gun was to be a dinner in Philadelphia tonight at which speakers will outline the objective of the drive as the promotion of all goods manufactured, grown or mined in Pennsylvania.

Speakers will include Richard P. Brown, State Secretary of Commerce; Dr. A. H. Williams, Wharton School Dean of the University of Pennsylvania; and William F. James, President of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. A similar dinner will be held in Pittsburgh tomorrow night with Mayor Cornelius P. Scully among the speakers.

Normal retail business is expected to be increased by "many millions of dollars" during the drive, according to a campaign announcement. Brown asserted the plan would mean increased employment within the State. The drive ends October 12.

The 1940 "Pennsylvania Days" campaign, sponsored by a representative group of Pennsylvania business organizations and endorsed by the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, gets under way today to promote the distribution and sale of all products grown or manufactured in Pennsylvania.

Continuing until October 12, the state-wide "Pennsylvania Days" are expected to benefit manufacturer, distributor, farmer, consumer and worker alike. J. M. Ellis, McKeesport, and F. Carter Schaub, Philadelphia, co-chairman of the campaign, report enthusiastic response from every section of the state, and expect a marked increase in Pennsylvania's retail business as a result of the drive.

Commenting on "Pennsylvania Days," Richard P. Brown, Secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, said:

"The 1940 Pennsylvania Days Campaign can prove most helpful toward attaining the three highly desirable goals of increased sales, stimulated production, and more widespread employment within the State. Pennsylvania-grown and Pennsylvania-made products will be advertised throughout the State and an appeal will be made to Pennsylvania consumers to patronize our home industries, in order that their dollars may increase the employment of Pennsylvania workers."

JUST FOR THE RECORD

Time is an abstraction. Men do not comprehend time, although some have groped toward it as part of a fourth dimension. The best we have been able to do is contrive calendars synchronized with the movement of the earth around the sun, and the moon around the earth; and clocks that space out a single rotation of the earth into sections that we call hours and minutes and seconds.

The occasion for this sally into metaphysics is the burying of the Time Capsule at the World's Fair in New York. Purporting to be a record of contemporary civilization, this capsule, weighing 800 pounds, was sunk in a fifty-foot well, supposedly for the edification of scientists and philosophers 5,000 years hence. Since recorded history goes back even less than that, it is obviously futile to imagine what the men of 7,000 A. D. will be like or what they will be thinking or what their reaction will be to the record of this generation so carefully laid away in its copper alloy shell.

Within the capsule is a book of record consisting of three and a half reels of microfilm reproducing information concerning twentieth century civilization. But suppose all known languages have ceased to exist when the book is dug up? That contingency too has been anticipated. A key to the English language has been thoughtfully included with the record, and copies of the book have been placed in libraries throughout the world.

It is perhaps doubtful that future ages will be as excited about our affairs as we are. Our scramble for existence, our frenzied hunt for pleasure, our dyspepsia and our neurasthenia may seem a mere pin prick on that vast map of time. But it is all pretty important to us.

In fact, it seems too bad that the burial service could not have been postponed a year or so—just to make room for the end of the chapter which is now so close to its climax. As the New York Herald-Tribune observed, "the story of the twentieth century has reached the point where the hero is hanging over the edge of the cliff and the villain is banging his fingers."

Nazi rabble-rousers, who are boasting that "soon we shall own the world," are much peeved to discover that certain sections are still peddling 99-year leases as defense bases.

The pompadour returns to the feminine mode, after many years. As many remember the pompadour, it saves the salesgirl running all over the shop for a pencil.

All the allusions are to the Fuchrer as the paperhanger. Why is it overlooked that Babe Goering of the many uniforms does his own redecorating?

A bakery chain reports 8 per cent of the clientele still calling for unsliced bread. No race is lost in which such rugged individualism persists.

A Small Home With Unusual Appeal

THIS home presents a striking appearance because of the innovations in the exterior design. The use of vertical wood siding at the front, the divided chimney, the tasteful employment of stone in the vestibule, and the combination of wood and stucco for the gable give the house a "different" outlook.

Inquiries relative to this house should be addressed to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, 1337 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C., and should refer to the "Beatrice."

LANGHORNE

Mrs. William Kniseley was taken on Wednesday to the Abington Hospital for treatment.

Malcolm Murrens, Clementon, N. J. Mrs. Hattie Reichardt, Philadelphia, and Mrs. George Hackett, Yardley were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Snyder, during the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis F. Sealey, Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Leona Sealey, Chester, spent the week-end with Mrs. William F. Sealey.

Arthur S. Walker and family moved on Saturday from Station avenue into a new house erected on Watson avenue.

Prof. and Mrs. Clarence Hampton, Philadelphia, were in town on Sunday. The Langhorne Alumni Association is planning a roller skating party at Buckingham in the near future, and a Halloween party the latter part of October.

Roscoe L. Horner recently fell, breaking his wrist.

Historical Note:

THE Rubicon was a small stream of ancient Italy which marked the boundary of Cisalpine Gaul. On one side and the other the country was much the same, the rolling Italian land. But in the year 49 B. C., on one side of the Rubicon lay the continuance of Roman constitutional government; on the other, Caesarism. The crossing of the small stream seemed physically of little account, but in the end it closed the era of republican Rome.

Within a year, the Sullan law which prohibited re-election of a Consul until 10 years had elapsed since his previous Consulship, was abrogated, and Caesar was given the right to seek the office for five years in succession. In 46 he was made dictator for 10 years, though Roman law provided that dictators must lay down their office in six months. In 44 Caesar was made dictator for life. And Caesar's heir succeeded to the principate.

Caesar had broken with the Roman tradition, and had declined to become a private citizen when his term of office expired. His defense, and the only defense which could be advanced, was that Rome needed a master.

Traditions are like the little stream in Northern Italy. On one side or the other the prospect may appear the same, but the appearance is deceptive. Once the Rubicon is passed, there is no turning back, but only the continuous breaking of new and untrodden paths. Where they led once-republican Rome is a matter of history.

There are many Rubicons, as many as a nation has traditions. One will lie before the American people next November.

Chamberlain Quits As Lord President of British Council

In place of Chamberlain, Sir John Anderson, Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, was appointed Lord President of the Council.

Herbert Morrison, Minister of Supply, succeeded Sir John as Home Secretary, while Lord Cranborne, Paymaster General, was named Dominions Secretary in place of Viscount Caldecote, who took another position.

Anderson will be included in the War Cabinet, which with Wood and Bevin now will number eight instead of six men and thus be even more "streamlined" than before. Bevin's entry into the inner war-directing group was hailed as a move adding tremendously to its strength.

Appointment of the dynamic Morrison as Home Security Minister was believed to forecast a tightening up of Britain's air raid precaution arrangements for a winter siege.

Sir Andrew Duncan, former President of the Board of Trade, was appointed Minister of Supply, and J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon was named Minister of Transport in place of Sir John Reith, who became Minister of Works and Buildings. Oliver Lyttelton was named President of the Board of Trade.

The post to which Sir John Reith was appointed is a newly-created one. Lord Hewart took advantage of the reshuffle to resign as Lord Chief Justice and was succeeded by Viscount Caldecote.

Chamberlain's letter of resignation to Churchill declared "... Unshaken confidence that under your leadership Britain ... will succeed in overcoming the forces of barbarism which have reduced a great part of Europe to a condition little better than slavery."

In his reply Churchill said: "The help you have given me ... rided-us through what may well prove the turning point of the war. You did all you could for victory."

At the same time the Government appointed an advisory group of six eminent scientists to aid it in fighting a "total war."

All three claimed they had not previously been in trouble, but admitted they had been warned by Bristol police of outcome if escapades continued.

The robberies, it is said, consisted of stealing bicycles, parts, wheels; also flashlight from automobiles, accessories of cars, cameras, tool kits, etc. The cases were investigated by Bristol police and County Detective Anthony Russo.

Kiefer, Jr., New Hope, will serve as manager and registrar of the school.

would serve only a few months before resigning to accept nominations from the hand of Mr. Hague.

IT then was natural that Mr. Hague should have been one of the most potent factors in bringing about the fake draft of Mr. Roosevelt at Chicago and should now be one of the loudest third-term boosters in the country. And it is also natural that, when one investigation by the Department of Justice of Mr. Hague's machine is suddenly dropped and another by a Senate committee is stalled off, the suspicion should exist of influence from "high Administration quarters" to protect him—at least until after the election. More than a year ago, upon evidence of fraud submitted to him, the then Attorney General, Frank Murphy, sent FBI investigators into Hudson county and was known to be ready to begin action against the Hague machine because of what he described as the "awful conditions."

BUT, the New Jersey Voter, a publication devoted to good government, declares, "before he could act several things happened. Murphy himself was kicked upstairs to the Supreme Court, Robert H. Jackson became Attorney General, Frank Hague declared in favor of a third term for Roosevelt." Although since prodded repeatedly by the New Jersey Voter, no action has been gotten out of Mr. Jackson and no replies received to numerous telegrams and letters asking for information. All of which has led, not unnaturally, to allegations that the Department of Justice is "covering up" for Mr. Hague. But Mr. Hague's troubles at home have been multiplying recently. The Republican Legislature threatens to enact a reform program designed to end traditional evils in Hudson county, and a new Superintendent of Elections, not a Hague man, is grimly purging the registration lists of ghost voters.

IN the midst of this Mr. Hague was called on a week or so ago to face an investigation of fraudulent registration charges by the Special Senate Committee. Although the Republican member, Senator Tobey, has vigorously protested, this investigation, which could have opened two weeks ago, has now been postponed until October 15. This means that nothing in the way of a thorough and effective investigation can be had before election day. After that, of course, the disclosures will not matter much. Considering all these things, it is not surprising that the charge is made that Mr. Hague is being protected by his Washington friends and that the pressure in his behalf comes from very high up.

NO adequate—or even plausible—reason for the postponement is offered. And when the circumstances are reviewed it is pretty convincing of pressure that Mr. Hague should be able to have one investigation into what were alleged to be "awful conditions" dropped just before action was to be taken and now have a second investigation into alleged fraudulent practices postponed to a date which will make its findings futile. This whole Roosevelt-Hague alliance smells bad. Certainly it adds to the irony of Mr. Roosevelt's "free-election" talk and makes more transparent the pretense of the "draft."

RECIPES: Those Which Interest Women

A REAL DELICACY

Few foods "touch the spot" at any season like a well-made frozen fruit salad, properly garnished. Ideal for any occasion when the hostess wants to serve something different and particularly delicious. Try the following and convince yourself:

Frozen Fruit Salad

(Serves 8)

- 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
- 1/3 cup Lemon Mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup orange sections
- 1/2 cup roasted almonds
- 2 teaspoons candied ginger
- 1 cup whipping cream

Mix cheese, mayonnaise and lemon juice until smooth. Cut fruits, ginger and nuts into smaller pieces and add to cheese mixture. Fold in the whipped cream. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Freeze 2 or 3 hours, or until firm. Serve on salad greens. Garnish with Lemon Mayonnaise.

Lemon Mayonnaise

- 1 egg or 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- Dash of paprika or pepper
- 2 cups salad oil

Beat the egg or egg yolks, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and seasonings thoroughly. Add the salad oil very slowly until mixture begins to get very thick; then add remaining lemon juice. Gradually beat in the rest of the oil and continue beating until well combined. Yield: about 2 1/2 cups.

Here is an Ice Cream That Takes Less Cream Than Usual—and Requires No Cooking

Ice cream is one of those dependable desserts that everybody likes with every kind of meal in every kind of weather. There are very few American homes where just plain, unadorned vanilla ice cream would not be greeted with shouts of delight on any day of the three hundred and sixty-five.

And when vanilla ice cream turns into orange, homemade into the bargain, it's enough to turn any meal into a feast. This is a treat which can come very economically into any home if the housewife uses rennet tablets in her ice cream making. Rennet-custard ice creams are always smooth and full-flavored, although they are made without the use of eggs and with approximately one-fourth of the total liquid in the form of cream, which is half to one-eighth as much cream as is used in the usual ice cream recipe. That means, first, no cooking, which is a blessing to the housewife on a hot day; and second, easier digestibility, which is a blessing to smaller members of the family who are sometimes denied rich home-made ice cream; and third, much lower caloric value, which is a blessing to anyone who fears that ice cream may be fattening.

Orange ice cream is good enough all by itself. But when you make it into an orange banana parfait, with a sparkling red currant jelly sauce, you produce a dessert to set before any dinner party, however epicurean. And all with so little extra work that you hardly feel it. Following these simple directions will perform the miracle for you.

Orange Banana Parfait

- 2 rennet tablets
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- 1 1/2 cups heavy cream
- 2 1/2 cups milk (ordinary or homogenized)
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 1/3 cup orange juice, strained
- 4 teaspoons lemon juice, strained
- 3/4 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 3 bananas

Crush and dissolve rennet tablets in cold water in a cup. Warm cream, milk and sugar slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on inside of wrist frequently. When comfortably warm (120 degrees F.), not hot, remove at once from stove. Add dissolved rennet tablets and stir quickly for a few seconds only. Pour at once, while still liquid, into freezer can and let stand at room temperature until firm and cool. Pack in a mixture of 4 parts ice to 1 part ice cream salt and freeze until mushy. Open can and slowly add fruit juice and grated rind, turning dasher to prevent mixture from hardening on outside. Replace cover and crank and finish freezing until stiff. Remove dasher. Repack with ice and salt and let set until ready to serve.

Serve in well-chilled parfait glasses. Cut lengthwise slices of ripe banana and coil diagonally around inside of glass. Fill with ice cream and top with a dab of whipped cream and a sauce made by whipping currant jelly until it can be poured. Cap with a maraschino cherry if desired. (If you do not have parfait glasses, use ordinary sherbets.) Serves 10.

MORE ICE CREAM

NEW YORK (INS)—America's liking for ice cream has increased 83 per cent in the last eight years, according to figures released by the National Dairy Council. In 1939 the United States consumed 9.21 quarts of ice cream per capita compared with 5.04 quarts in 1932. It was estimated that ice cream manufacturers purchased 4,465,485,000 pounds of milk for the cream used in this favorite dairy product.

"What's My Name?"

A reader from Washington, D. C., sends this in to us. It was clipped from the "Chicago Tribune."

"I was born in New York State in a great mansion. I never knew what work was or is, and neither did my father. However, I know more about your work or business than you do. As a boy, I had two or more nurses and a governess to answer and satisfy my every whim. During the last war, when most men my age took up arms for my country, through pull I received a cushie job as assistant secretary of the navy (that an older and more experienced man could have filled better.)"

"I practiced law in Wall Street, defending 'bucket shops.' I joined just two business ventures both of them proving 100 per cent losses to investors long before the collapse of 1929. I served four years as governor of a great state and wrecked its finances."

"I have served eight years as President of the greatest nation in the world and now have it in the worst mess in its history."

"While my wife, sons, and daughter, through the prestige of my office, have each made fortunes, I now want to continue myself and family in office forever."

What's New in Cooking
by Gertrude Dent

So He Won't Eat His Carrots!

FRESH vegetables are not apt to be prime favorites with men. Practically every man has a little black list of his own—vegetables which he just will not accept graciously. But before dropping those vegetables from your own list of menu possibilities, make sure that it's the vegetables themselves your menfolk dislike—and not just the way they have always had them cooked, heretofore. Perhaps a new method of serving, or some unusual trick of seasoning—are all you need, from a masculine point of view, to add appetite-appeal. Or, maybe it's the method of cooking that needs revision.

Vegetables, today, are of such fine quality that they deserve the finest treatment in the kitchen. There's a right method of cooking vegetables to conserve the food value, and do the most for flavor and texture.

The certainty of measured heat for top-range cooking makes it possible to cook vegetables in very little water, when you cook electrically. All the good flavor, color, and food value are retained. Just put the prepared vegetables in a saucepan, add salt and water (1/2-1 1/2 cups), and cover tightly. Cook on High heat until steam appears. Then turn switch to 4th position and continue cooking. If you like, you can turn off the current for the last 10 minutes, and finish cooking on "free" heat.

Here's an unusual combination of two everyday vegetables, particularly good to serve with steak, or liver and bacon.

Smothered Onions and Peppers
(Serves 4)
2 tablespoons butter
3 cups onions (sliced)
1 1/2 cups green pepper (sliced)
1 teaspoon salt

Melt butter in a heavy skillet. Add onions and peppers. Cover. Turn switch of surface unit to 3rd position, and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Add salt, and serve.

Bake halves of tomatoes in a hot oven, with the electric thermostat set at 400°, until the tomatoes are tender (10-15 minutes). Top with cooked asparagus tips, and sprinkle with grated American cheese. Place in pre-heated broiler, about 5 inches below the broiling unit, and broil until the cheese melts and is brown and crusty.

Add a teaspoon of sugar when cooking carrots, tomatoes, or peas, to bring out the flavor of the vegetables.

Bacon fat or butter rubbed over potatoes before baking prevents cracking and adds to the flavor and appearance of the potatoes.

Remove parsley from the stems, place on cutting board, and with a straight edge knife cut through the parsley repeatedly until it is as fine as desired.

A little fresh garden mint, minced, is a tasty addition to buttered carrots or peas.

An old percolator is an excellent vessel in which to cook asparagus. Stand the asparagus in the percolator with the tips up. Add boiling water, cover, and cook. The asparagus tips will be steamed beautifully, while the stems cook to just the right stage of tenderness.

Cook spinach with only the water that clings to the leaves after washing. Do not over-cook!

To make lettuce cups for salad, take 2 leaves of lettuce and cut a V-shaped piece out of the stem end of each. Then fit one V into the other, and place on salad plate to form a cup.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

Grant us seeing eyes, hearing ears, and receptive hearts, so that we delight in the law of the Lord and meditate in it day and night. Then shall we not walk with the ungodly, nor stand with sinners, nor sit with those who scorn. Then shall Thy work be a privilege and Thy statutes shall be our songs. May our worship and work always be related so that whatsoever we do, may prosper. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The Grand Theatre will continue its new season parade of film hits so auspiciously begun with "All This, And Heaven Too," "My Love Came Back," and "They Drive By Night," with "Flowing Gold" starring John Garfield, Frances Farmer, and Pat O'Brien. The screen transcription of Rex Beach's widely read novel is to have its local opening today.

The locale of the dynamic action-drama is Texas' great oil fields, the sprawling strip of land where men ruthlessly fight to capture flowing gold—the rich black oil that has lain in waiting since prehistoric time to gush geyser-like into the air.

Against this vivid background is painted the enthralling story of love, greed, and high adventure.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Yesterday's audiences at the Bristol Theatre, by their laughter, launched Baby Sandy into stardom in "Sandy Is A Lady," designed for laughing purposes. "Sandy Is A Lady" fulfills its mission thoroughly.

Supporting Baby Sandy are Butch and Buddy (the Little Tornadoes), Nan Grey, Tom Brown, and flimdom's foremost funsters, Mischa Auer, Eugene Pallette, Billy Gilbert and Edgar Kennedy.

Also on the same show is "Murder in the Night," starring Jack LaRue.

RITZ THEATRE

Tomorrow night marks the last opportunity for lovers of whirlwind adventure drama to see "Bullets For Rustlers," Charles Starrett's latest thrill-thrilled production now closing its highly successful showing at the Ritz Theatre.

"Starrett is a 'C-man,' cattleman's detective, in 'Bullets For Rustlers,' and the story teems with surprising situations and hard-hitting climaxes. Lorna Gray is the star's leading lady, and the Sons of the Pioneers sing and strum in their inimitable style.
